Why is Heaven Pushing?

Some of you have commented on the strong messages coming from heaven. I realize there is a lot of warm fuzzy ones out there as well. They may be sharing the love and light that is available to you all, which is wonderful. The future is bright.

However, there are a lot of concerns being heard and those prayers are trying to be answered. Heaven is providing solutions in ways you may not realize. Many of them go on behind the scenes. Those in heaven are sometimes challenged with trying to assist because of resistance people have to receiving the help provided.

Operating on both sides of fence at times, I see the challenges experienced on both sides of veil. God and his assistants are not happy to see so many people suffer. They want to change those dynamics. They want to see this world be one of peace, joy, love, freedom and abundance. Although many would intellectually agree that would also be their preference, their lack of faith and commitment to that end is not always evident.

There's a push to wake everyone up to a better way - an easier way. A life of ease is possible but the challenge lies in not everyone accepting the possibility of that as well as their power in making that difference.

For centuries people have been taught to look outside themselves for answers. They have given their power away to others not realizing they are doing so. They are following rules set down from others that didn't necessarily have their best interest in mind but preferred creating rules to control.

Heaven wants to give the power back to you. Often people are waiting for a miracle to happen to them rather than through them.

When you go within to access all there is, you can access the solutions necessary for your personal gain. The solutions, however, are for the good of all and not just selfish gain. Therefore, if you received guidance for your own gain it will not likely be at the expense of another.

There is much in the works to bring about peace. Our heavenly colleagues are working tirelessly to assist in bringing about peace. Although many of us wish for a magic wand of sorts to come down and make this a peaceful environment, there are variables often unfamiliar to us. The dynamics of living on a "free-will" planet create a unique breeding ground for mayhem. The universe at large responds to our choices as well as our requests.

We may request peace in the Middle East but choose anger within our own hearts. You can't have both. If you want peace in the Middle East, you must choose it within your own heart and express it outwardly.

Once enough people choose peace within and without, there will be enough light coming from within us to bring more light down into the environs that need it most.

We contribute to the outcome by the very thoughts and actions we make on a daily basis.

Blessings,
Joy

PS We are ramping up for some forthcoming good news I am looking forward to sharing.
