Do You Fear God?

I asked God what he felt I should write about to serve the highest and best good and make the biggest difference to you. The response was to address the fear of God.

I don't know about you, but I was raised to believe God was someone to be feared. I also knew he was someone I was here to serve. It's not easy to take up a job working for a boss you knew out of the gate would be someone to fear. I also believed that it would be a job that wouldn't pay.

Fortunately for me, I was able to clear the cause of that fear and limiting belief to now know and serve God in a way that is beyond the imaginable.

God has been taught to be feared so it is not uncommon that people fear him. I had to clear my own fearful teachings to be able to let God in to enjoy the relationship I now have with him.

I also had to let go of the vows of poverty and other beliefs that contributed to my belief that serving God meant deprivation of sorts. There are a lot of other things I cleared about money to contribute to shifts in receiving money and creating abundance. However, another issue was to trust God. God is the source of all including me, my money and my opportunity.

Even accepting God as the source of all, it didn't make it any easier to receive money if afraid of the source of it. There are so many misperceptions about God, money, and life that have limited us all in receiving all we are capable of and entitled to by divine right.

I am grateful to now know God in a way that he not only responds and communicates with me but provides my every need effortlessly. And, if I am not receiving what I want, I know it is me blocking it not God not willing to give it to me.

Some of the common subconscious beliefs blocking the results my clients seek that come up during my sessions are:

- Not feeling their prayers are answered
- God is not listening
- God is someone to be feared
- God can't possibly forgive me my mistakes (from this or other lifetimes)
- I must not be good enough for God to give to me
- I must be doing something wrong
- Fear of judgment
- I can't trust God; or the self
- I am too guilty to receive

Once the negative charge from the memories that have caused these beliefs are cleared, the opportunities increase, life becomes more effortless, and abundant. That is my brief perspective from my work on myself and with my clients, but who better to address this subject than God himself.

Blessings to you.

Wishing you have a wonderful weekend,

Joy

Why Do You Fear Me?

I have never given you reason to fear me. But man has many times. Those who have welded their power and efforts to control you have often shed a fearful thought your way to fear me. If you didn't fear the one who created you, you would be more powerful. If you were more powerful, someone else would have less power over you. Those who have wanted to gain control over you have diminished me and your ability to connect with me directly. They have told you that if you didn't behave a certain way, I would judge you, take something from you or turn you away from me. That has never been the case. I love you beyond measure. I gave you free will. So how could I judge you for a gift that I gave you.

I haven't always been happy with the way you exercised your free will but it was still up to you to do with your gift as you so pleased. I did not, however, condone you harming others with that free will of yours. I still don't like when anyone harms another. When you harm another, you are only harming yourself in the long run. I set the world up so you could experience it in a way that it would teach you best practices. If you harmed another, you would know what that harm felt like.

I did not punish you, however. You would just have mirrored back to you what you chose to demonstrate. You got to experience your actions from both sides of the coin so to speak. Quite frankly, I don't need to judge you. You do plenty of that yourselves both of others as well as of yourselves. Where did you learn that judgment? Not from me. I taught love and acceptance. Man taught judgment. I set down rules of order to help you navigate through life easier. I did not, however, say if you don't do this or that, you will burn in hell.

It is the things you have been taught by man who have caused you to fear me, fear life, not trust me, not trust yourself. You are the one to have lost much because without your connection to me, you lack so much. Without knowing the safety of my embrace and care for you, you cannot be empowered to be, do and have all that is possible for you. I have so much more in mind for you than you are able to receive. You limit me day in and day out, moment by moment, by your thoughts and beliefs.

You stand there wanting what you want and blaming me and others for not getting what you want. The answers to that dilemma lie within your own heart. It is there I lie in wait for you. It is there that I connect with you. It is there that I serve your every need and give you the love that you so long to feel. The love that you lack that causes you search in all the wrong places to fill the void I once held for you.

For once you know me and the love I have for you, you no longer have the need to look outside of yourself for anything. I am there for now as I have been there for you always. It is not I that you should fear. The only fear you should have is of someone who is trying to disempower you and take away our connection. For in that moment, you diminish your own power and your own ability to heal and receive.

You are welcome in my home any time you choose. There is no gatekeeper where I exist. St. Peter is not at a pearly gate determining whether or not you are worthy to come in. You can enter that gate now from within your own heart for that is where I lie in wait.
