A New Look at Labor Day

As we approach labor day, what are your thoughts of labor? Is what you do for a living a labor of love? Are you working for income, but only tolerating what you are doing? Are you in the right job, career or business? Are you satisfied with your performance and enjoyment of that most time-consuming part of life?

Are you looking at Monday grateful to be away from what you do? Is that because you are overworked, doing the wrong career or not happy with something about your job?

If you do nothing else this weekend but think about where you are and what you truly believe about what you are doing, you may discover some disconnects or imbalances.

What are they? Are you where you wanted to be with your career? Are you achieving the results you desire? Is your job, career or business fulfilling you, meeting your needs and bringing you joy?

We are moving out of time in life where we just do things to make a living. We are moving into a time where everyone should be doing what they were created to express and experience this lifetime.

We are moving away from business based on oppression, inequality and sacrifice. Where do you fall into the mix of all this? Are you contributing to an old mindset and the way business has been up until now? Or, are you fashioning your life, your business or career from a place of empowered possibility?

As you and the rest of the world ascends, the dynamics of the workforce, jobs, business and concepts of labor will change.

- Are you clinging to the ideas of the past?
- Are you embracing the possibilities of the future?
- Are living the ideals of others?
- Are you creating the future and work according to your blueprint?
- Are you a lemming or a leader?
- Are you a conformist or a creator?
- Are you living out of the past or in the moment?
- Are you living out of memory or out of inspiration?
- Are you fulfilling your destiny?
- Are you doing the work you were meant to perform?

Where are you on the scale of being, doing and having a life that is purposeful and fulfilling?

Keep this in mind this weekend. Whatever your life has been to date does not mean that is the way it has to continue to be. The world IS changing. Are you changing along with it? Are you noticing the shift in conscious occurring around you? Is your consciousness shifting as well?

Don't just focus on the BBQ this weekend and being grateful to being away from labor. Allow yourself to dream and imagine the world you want to live in, contribute to and consider what role you would like to play in it. It is no longer a world where you are serving and meeting the ideals of the few. The time is now for YOU to live and express the life you came here to live.

Wishing you a wonderful weekend,

Joy
