In Light of Memorial Day

Over the years, I have done many clearings on a variety of wars including those of Alexander the Great and Hannibal. During Desert Storm, I cleared it regularly clearing.

There are so many things we include. Sounds of war, weapons, strategy, tactics, orders, marching, environment and the elements, rape and pillage, booty, spoils of war, uniforms, boots, killing and battling the enemy, causes, invasion, wounds, being invaded, killing, bloodshed, the land, etc. The work is quite extensive.

When the opportunity to clear a history with a war or battle comes up during a client session, we are not only clearing the cause and effect of the war, but how those memories are still impacting that person in this lifetime.

Recently I did a session with a client working on her feet and the memories that surfaced were marching with shabby boots in less than desirable circumstances. Those memories from another lifetime were still inhibiting her to a degree. It doesn't matter how long ago a circumstance existed. If the emotional attachment to that experience is unreleased, it can still wreak havoc.

Many have died or have been wounded during wars this lifetime and others and continue to have emotional and physical battle scars that contribute to their relating to the world through a filter of war.

The majority of our history on earth included a war somewhere in the world.

Do you think someone might begin to notice that war isn't the solution? Only peace is. Creating peace within first and foremost, and then allowing that to permeate out influencing your interactions with others. The next question usually is regarding how do you get everyone to take that approach. It doesn't matter. You can't control others. But, you can control the choices you make moment by moment in choosing peace. You can be the example to others. If someone doesn't take the stand, where do you start?

Unless people give up the idea that force is the solution, we will continue to need to suffer from and clear the cause of war. Over the years clearing war, I have discovered some of the following:

The Vatican treasure had a curse from a king who was invaded and had his belongings stolen from him and his kingdom.

Desert Storm had connections to Alexander the Great and his battles that still needed releasing.

Working on a company, I discovered it was built on Civil War battleground. Those energies were embedded into the land causing the employees to not see eye-to-eye.

Clearing the cause darkness helped avert World War III.

The wars amongst the gods and goddesses were necessary to be cleared as they had an affect on Earth.

Battles that started in Heaven have continued here on Earth.

God said he's never started a war, but has ended a few.

Rations distributed during wartime have sometimes needed to be cleared when clearing a client on weight loss issues.

Clearing relationship issues have included the waiting for the loved one to return from

Let's get to know each other, the challenges you face and the solutions I provide. If there's a fit, we can decide together what options are best for you.

war.

Physical ailments, such as pain someone experiences now, have often included a memory of a wound received in another lifetime when in battle.

I could go on but I think the variety of examples demonstrate how war continues to cause a battle within or somewhere to continue.

Wishing you a wonderful Memorial Day weekend.

Faithfully yours,
Joy
