Joyful News - December 19, 2018

The holidays bring up many issues and variables.

This is something that I find disturbing and that is the judgment of others regarding those saying Happy Holidays versus Merry Christmas. I personally have chosen to say Happy Holidays to those whom I am not sure celebrate Christmas. I am happy to say Merry Christmas to those I know celebrate it. about

I'm sure that those who don't celebrate Christmas have become used to those wishing them a Merry Christmas regardless of their religious affiliation. I would hope they don't take offense.

When I say Happy Holidays, I am including the whole holiday season. I could certainly inquire about someone's religious affiliation before providing them good wishes so I could be more specific. But, it is really not my business what they practice. This is a holiday season. It is supposed to be a time of joy and celebration. Why take issue if someone says Happy Holidays to you when you prefer Merry Christmas? Wouldn't it be more generous and gracious to accept the kind wishes rather than look for an opportunity to take offense?

For those of you who take issue with this, you might appreciate the perspective of Jesus regarding the holidays, religion and Christmas. Jesus dictated this message which I shared on my blog, which you can read here.

I wish you all joy this holiday season and a Merry Christmas. May you have love and light in your heart no matter what your circumstances or what or how you celebrate. Remember the light and love comes from within your own heart. That is your greatest attribute and gift to others.

Much love,

Joy
