Do You Have What You Want With Ease?

A friend of mine was over Monday and he mentioned a friend of ours being a powerful manifestor. He said he didn't realize it, however. He has been giving his power away so long that he doesn't realize he is creating and attracting the results he is experiencing. And, they aren't necessarily positive ones.

Creation begins within us. What we believe is what we attract. It's the internal belief system that is often the challenge, however. You can consciously believe you desire and deserve something. But, are you congruent between your conscious and subconscious? And, is it what your superconscious desires? (It is your superconscious or high self that decided with God why you were created.) Is it what God wants for you? If the team isn't all in alignment, the results are diminished. The results are usually defaulted to the lowest potential.

God gave all free will. So, even if he wants the highest and best for you, and tries to give it you, you block God if you are not ready to receive at the highest level.

I realize no one would likely do that intentionally. I think by now most realize that God has the highest and best in mind for all. He always considers all parties to make sure it is optimal for all before giving the green light.

But, if unworthiness is at play, guilt over receiving, fear of potential outcomes - usually based on past experiences, and incongruence between word and action, the results are never consistent. What is manifested is usually struggle and disappointment.

An example recently was working with one gentleman who had feelings of unworthiness that plagued him his entire life. The cause, however, began in another life. When I released that lifetime, he found his work significantly improved. He was less doubtful and he closed more business.

I have also found that there may be karma, curses and other sabotage that can block results. Between clearing those issues along with the mindset, people can manifest with more ease.

Optimal Results

On another note, I have manifested things I have wanted with precision. I have also found that if they aren't in alignment with God, it may not be optimal. Although it seemingly a great outcome fitting the general standards of people, it may not be purposeful for my highest good. That is why I have learned to surrender the outcome to God. He knows my purpose, blueprint, divine destiny, etc. He provides the resources necessary for the desired outcomes. It becomes less stressful as I don't have to think about much. All I need do is go with the flow, act as inspired, and receive the goodies purposeful for me and my reason for being.

I have also found that if I am resistant to God's plan, that resistance can wreak havoc in ways I don't want to repeat. It is much easier to go with God's plan. I have come to learn he actually does know a thing or two more than me. And, fortunately for me, I have learned to connect directly and can turn to him and get direct guidance, assistance and feedback.

One of the reasons he has now asked me to help clients connect with him better is so they can receive the direct guidance and insights for their optimal outcomes. He wants to make life easier for all who desire the highest and best for themselves. I personally don't know a better asset than God's support.

If you want to explore getting my help, just reply to this email.

May you successfully soar with ease...

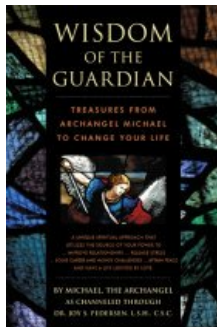

Love,

Joy
